Welcome to Worcester, Massachusetts!

City of Worcester, MA | 455 Main St., Worcester, MA 01608 | (508) 929-1300 | Email

Welcome to the official website for the City of Worcester, MA - the great city in the heart of the Commonwealth and New England.

All great cities share certain traits - a vibrant, undeniable energy and culture that drives their growth and characterizes their livability. They are easily accessible and welcoming to business and families alike. With strong roots in a proud past, great cities also are progressive - innovating, collaborating, busy building their own successful future.

Worcester - a five-time recipient of the All American City Award - offers its residents the resources and exciting attractions of a metropolis, balanced with the more intimate, livable scale of a mid-size city - and something more...

community, from the blogosphere, from the news media—it is nothing short of amazing.

Let's start out with a few statistics, as of last night (thanks, Justin!):

- 392,000 views on the photostream
- 650,000 views of photos
- Adding in set and collection page views, there were about 1.1 million total views on our account
- All 3,100+ photos have been viewed
- 420 of the photos have comments
- 1,200 of the photos have been favorited

And just look at all of those tags!

I've been writing this blog (although not nearly often enough) for about nine months, and this topic lit it up like fireworks. I was handed a sampling of what you all have been posting about this on your own blogs, and after only about 24 hours, the stack must have been close to two inches thick. Even Wil Wheaton wrote about it! (Yes, the

Frequently Asked Questions

Overview

[Contents]

The Sitemap Protocol allows you to inform search engines about URLs on your websites that are available for crawling. In its simplest form, a Sitemap that uses the Sitemap Protocol is an XML file that lists URLs for a site. The protocol was written to be highly scalable so it can accommodate sites of any size. It also enables webmasters to include additional information about each URL (when it was last updated; how often it changes; how important it is in relation to other URLs in the site) so that search engines can more intelligently crawl the site.

Sitemaps are particularly beneficial when users can't reach all areas of a website through a browseable interface. (Generally, this is when users are unable to reach certain pages or regions of a site by following links). For example, any site where certain pages are only accessible via a search form would benefit from creating a Sitemap and submitting it to search engines.

This document describes the formats for Sitemap files and also explains where you should post your Sitemap files so that search engines can retrieve them.

Please note that the Sitemap Protocol supplements, but does not replace, the crawl-based mechanisms that search engines already use to discover URLs. By submitting a Sitemap (or Sitemaps) to a search engine, you will help that engine's crawlers to do a better job of crawling your site.

Using this protocol does not guarantee that your webpages will be included in search indexes. (Note that using this protocol will not influence the way your pages are ranked by Google.)

Google adheres to Sitemap Protocol 0.9 as dictated by sitemaps.org. Sitemaps created for Google using Sitemap Protocol 0.9 are therefore compatible with other search engines that adopt the standards of sitemaps.org

Enable Crawlers

- Create a liberal “robots.txt” file:

  User-agent: *
  Allow: /

- Create a “sitemap.xml” file that:
  - Specifically lists all of the URLs you want to be crawled
  - You register with Google, etc.

Push Stuff Out

- Where are your users found?
- How can you get your stuff in front of them?
- What protocols and standards should you support to enable interoperability?

Three Steps to Discovery

1. Review your “robots.txt” file
2. Create a sitemap and register it
3. Study Google’s SEO doc, and implement everything you can

Rules of Engagement

Three Steps to Engagement

1. Understand your audience and their passion
2. Tailor your site to serve their needs
3. Return to step 1

Understand Your Audience

- Who(are they?)
- What(do they want?)
- When(do they want it?)
- Where(do they want it?)
- Why(do they want it?)
- How(do they want it?)

Steering Committee

Join the first experiment in social tagging of art museum collections.

Here's how:

- Tag Art
- Museums
- Researchers
- Developers

What is steve? Steve is a research project whose participants are building a tagging tool, collecting tags, analyzing data, and engaging in discussion. We hope to apply what we learn to improving access to works of art. Here's a diagram of steve's world.

THE FORCING OF THE LOWER RHINE

From the abandonment of their western bridgehead opposite Wesel, a fortnight ago, until the blow fell on Friday night, the Germans had helplessly watched Field-Marshal Montgomery's preperations to cross the Rhine and invade the Ruhr. There was nothing they could do to interfere. They knew that they could not prevent the passage of the river when the mighty Allied military machine was ready to move again. What even the terrible experiences of the past could hardly have prepared them for was the weight of the air assault that descended upon their defences and lines of supply during the days and nights preceding the attack. Nothing so paralysing had been known before, and perhaps no air offensive quite so sustained and ferocious will be mounted again in this war. For the Allies poured out their bombs in the knowledge that the crossing of the lower Rhine, facilitated by the smothering of enemy strongpoints and communications, must bring the end of the struggle within their reach. "Once the river line has been pierced and the crust of German resistance broken," Mr. Churchill told the 21st achieved by keeping powers of compulsion very much in reserve. Mr. Fadden warned the House that the attempt to impose severe restrictions on banking business by means of set rules must result in a black market in finance. Would-be borrowers are already being driven to seek loans from other sources not subject to the same close supervision as the banks, and growth of this practice could lead not only to usurious rates of interest, but actually to the partial breakdown of the very control over finance which the Government professes to strengthen.

The overwhelming objection to the Bills, however, is the fact that they bring the Commonwealth Bank, and through it the trading banks, under political control, whereas, as Mr. Menzies declared, "it is clear that the central bank, as chief stabiliser, must be guided purely by economic facts, and never by party political considerations." Since all the recommendations of the 1936 Royal Commission on banking were designed for a central bank under the management of an independent board it is vain for Mr Chifley to quote the Commission's report in justification of a plan which makes the governor of the bank subservient to the Treasurer. Taking this point as the crux of the whole question, Mr. Menzies has very properly pledged his party to restore the bank to the control of an independe

Picture Australia and Yahoo! invite you to contribute your photographs to Picture Australia, using Yahoo!'s online image repository, Flickr (www.flickr.com)!

The Flickr website contains more than 70 million images from contributors all over the world and was acquired by Yahoo! in March 2005. Around 80 per cent of the images stored on Flickr are freely accessible to anyone visiting the site. This sets it apart from other internet photo sharing sites, where users often specify precisely who is allowed to view the images they upload. The site's two million users presently add a new image to the site every four seconds.

Anybody can add their own photographs to Flickr quickly and easily, marking them with descriptions and tags so they can be archived correctly and retrieved at a later date by other visitors.

Picture Australia does not own the Copyright for the images contributed through Flickr. To obtain permission to reproduce the Flickr images found in Picture Australia, you will need to contact the individual photographers by logging into Flickr and using Flickrmail to send them a message.

If you would like to add your photos to the Picture Australia group on Flickr simply follow these steps:

1. go to www.flickr.com
2. Sign in to Flickr, or sign up if you are not already a member
3. To activate your Flickr account you will need to load at least 5 photos
4. Visit the Picture Australia groups, by searching for 'Picture Australia' under the 'groups' tab in Flickr, or by following these links:
